Ronald Spadafora is an assistant (3-Star) chief with the New York City Fire Department. He is currently the assistant chief of training. Chief Spadafora also teaches fire science at John Jay College of the City University of New York. He was Chief Safety Officer for the FDNY Incident Management Team (IMT) at Ground Zero for the entire eight-month recovery operation in New York City after 9/11. He was also the deputy incident commander for the FDNY IMT directing rescue and recovery in New Orleans in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina and during Hurricane Rita.

Helped me a lot to prep for the fire exam. Even though its a civil service test and the questions are different, this definitely helped prepping and understanding how to answer the questions. Would recommend to anyone who is thinking about taking their fireman's test.

Awesome book, well structured book, super simple to read and understand, break every subject really well, and gives the most accurate information to get in the fire service.

Mostly decent. But has wrong book answers. Ie correct book answer in road map tells you to travel wrong way down one way street

Very helpful!
