People Power: The Greatest Democracy Ever Told The Philippine Revolution Of 1986 (An Eyewitness To History)

Synopsis

This is an oral and visual history of people's power in the Philippine revolution of 1986. It is an oral history told by the people who witnessed, and made, the event. It is also a visual history told through photographs--247 photos. It was a revolution without precedent. Men, women, and children, armed only with crucifixes, images of the Blessed Virgin, songs, and rosaries to signify their prayers-made themselves into human barricades. Made invulnerable by their vulnerability, they faced up to armed Marines and stopped tanks. Thus, the people disarmed the Marcos forces. People's power had regained democracy. The book captures history as it was made, out of spontaneous courage which Filipinos will never forget and about which the world will always wonder.

From the flap: "This is an oral and visual history of people's power in the Philippine revolution of 1986."Indeed it is. This book was produced with amazing speed, in 1986, directly after the events of the revolution. It was a collaboration between the James B. Reuter, S.J. Foundation, the PCIBANK

Development Foundation, and a legion of Philippine journalists, political activists, and general civic witnesses. Thus, both savvy and unsophisticated citizens appear here in text and image. A remarkably complete and emotionally rich telling of what went down. There is a blush of the new and a fervent optimism in this book that is palpable. A 320 page hardback with dustcover. Well over 200 black and white photographs with a couple of video image captures. A rather basic printing job done in Hong Kong: heavy slightly reflective stock, a decent binding. With virtually all of the book done in matte or glossy white on paper that was prone to foxing, this is not a book designed to age well.
