Synopsis

A Companion to the Anthropology of India offers a broad overview of the rapidly evolving scholarship on Indian society from the earliest area studies to views of India's globalization in the twenty-first century. Provides readers with an important new introduction to the anthropology of India. Explores the larger global issues that have transformed India since the end of colonization, including demographic, economic, social, cultural, political, and religious issues. Contributions by leading experts present up-to-date, comprehensive coverage of key topics such as population and life expectancy, civil society, social-moral relationships, caste and communalism, youth and consumerism, the new urban middle class, environment and health, tourism, public and religious cultures, politics and law. Represents an authoritative guide for professional social and cultural anthropologists, and South Asian specialists, and an accessible reference work for students engaged in the analysis of India's modern transformation.

"This volume provides a useful framework for and discussion of the complexity and range of recently published research on the anthropologies of the Indian subcontinent in the era of globalization . . . Summing up: Essential. All libraries supporting graduate and undergraduate programs in anthropology, sociology, and history." (Choice, 1 July 2011)

"This marvelous exploration of the 'new' India is also a triumphant vindication of the old anthropological virtues of closely attending to the particularity of other people's lives." Jonathan

Spencer, Professor of the Anthropology of South Asia, University of Edinburgh "This collection cuts loose from earlier ethnographic and theoretical interests to focus on India seen through the theoretical lens of globalization." Mattison Mines, University of California Santa Barbara "This is an excellent, highly readable, sample of current work on the social anthropology of India, a "must" for anyone interested in developments in Indian society today." Peter van der Veer, Director Max Planck Institute for the Study of Religious and Ethnic Diversity, Göttingen "This exciting volume showcases the work of an array of established and younger scholars who are thinking about the astonishing changes happening in contemporary India.
