James Eatock is an English freelance animator, designer, writer and publisher. He is commonly known on the internet as Busta Toons. In 1997, James alongside Zadoc Angell created the He-Man and She-Ra Episode Review Website. The website was primarily Zadoc's idea and James had little interest in contributing to it during its initial developmental stages. However, it went on to become one of the biggest websites dedicated to the He-Man and She-Ra animated series, attracting many visitors including much of the original creative staff, and earning the pair reputations as He-Man and She-Ra experts. The author lives in London, England, UK.

Dark Horse has been knocking it out of the park with the series of He-Man and She-Ra companion books. James Eatock is well known in fandom as an expert on 80's animation and pop culture. He is the publisher of a fantastic fanzine called Cereal Geek and is an authority on He-Man and the Masters of the Universe. I was thrilled when I found out he was authoring this book. He has contributed to the other Dark Horse MOTU books. This volume is a complete and total recap of every single episode of the two classic animated series. It has character breakdowns, episode overview, reused animation, trivia and more. Stills from the show, production art, script pages and even examples of the cell animation. If you ARE a fan of the Masters of the Universe and Princess of Power, it's an absolute must. If you WERE a fan and remember the shows from when you were a kid, it's a fantastic glimpse in to your childhood. I promise you'll want to go out and buy the DVDs so you can watch them again.

If you are a He-Man/She-Ra fan you've probably already ordered this book. If you haven't - DO IT. There's no more exhaustive tome that covers everything and brother I mean pretty much everything from these two series. Still reading it, but flipping through it I don't see anything related to Adventures of He-Man, the latter series right before they stopped making episodes for a decade or so. Amazing behind-the-scenes artwork, stories about things that wound up on the cutting room floor, and hey...just what DID Orko look like without that hat? Fair warning, do some weight training before it arrives...this sucker is massive!

As other reviewers have noted, this is A LOT of book for the price - not only in terms of size, but in terms of the extra content in the form of sketches, animation stills, and a "flip book" animation of He-man racing into action at the bottom of the page! The highlight of the work is its definitive treatment of each episode of He-man and the Masters of the Universe and She-ra Princess of Power. A plot, list of characters, stock animation, and rating accompany each entry. The ratings are especially fun and made me return to episodes I hadn't seen in a long while. My singular (and very minor) criticism would be that entries on the sides of the pages sometimes duplicate information found elsewhere under that episode. All in all, a fun read for anyone who has ever raised their hand aloft and said, "By the power of Grayskull!"

not sure i'll ever actually sit down and read it all or even flip thru all of the pages, but I just wanted to have it as a He-Man fan

Absolutely phenomenal book, a must have for anyone who grew up in the 80's watching He-Man. It is almost 600 pages of information/drawings/etc from every episode of He-Man and She-Ra. Paging through this book brings back a lot of memories. Everything is well-written and laid out in an easy to navigate format. Well worth it, if you're debating purchasing this book, just buy it!! You won't regret it.

Don't need to say anything in the title.

This is a whole lotta book, for the price! Loaded with all kinds of information. Lots of everything you could want in a book like this.

A complete MOTU/ POP guide of every episode made! AWESOME! :D :D :D
