Nicholas Liberto is president of Powder Coating Consultants, Division of Ninan, Inc., an independent consulting firm located in Bridgeport, Conn. Since 1980 he has worked in the powder coating industry. He holds a B.S. in Mechanical Engineering and is a registered Professional Engineer in Connecticut. Liberto is a member of the Powder Coating Institute, the Chemical Coaters Association, the Association for Finishing Processes of SME, and the American Electroplaters and Surface Finisher's Society.

I helped understand what is involved in setting up a power coating line.

This book was very technical and was not at all what I was looking for. It is not really a user's guide.

Covers the subject in good detail. I hope it is not too far over my level of experience but I can work on upgrading my skills.

It gives a detailed overview of what electrostatic powder paint is about. It helped me decide opening my shop and what to do to become a successful start up.

Great if your just starting and looking for tips

If you are staring a powder coating business this is a great book very good tips is good for hobbits cover problems and solutions

I got this book when I got a job as a powder coater after being unemployed from my prior profession for six months. Having never powder coated before I chose to get this book hoping it would help me become a good powder coater making me an asset to my new employer. I found there to be a tremendous amount of great information in this book. It has answered all questions that I have had as well as helping me to solve problems during the powder coating process and ultimately transformed me into a better powder coater. I would recommend this book to beginners, novices, and employers (to use in training new employees). Professionals may even find this book helpful due to all the tables and charts in it. God Bless.
